BRYAN'S CHANCE

The Enquirer Makes Suggestion to the Peerless Boss.

On the eve of the Denver convention the Cincinnati Enquirer points out Bryan's opportunity to serve his party. The Enquirer understands that Bryan forced himself on the party twelve years ago and that he and populism just about swallowed up the old democratic party. The Enquirer, which was the only great newspaper in the middle west that consistently supported Bryan in his former campaigns, makes a suggestion to Candidate Bryan as follows:

"During both campaigns in which Mr. Bryan was a candidate for the Presidency The Enquirer gave him cordial support. When after his second defeat it was plainly evident that the party could not be united upon him, and that hundreds of thousands of votes naturally democratic were certain to be withheld or cast against the ticket which bore his name, the Enquirer believed and expressed the belief that he should retire and leave the field open to candidates who could be more successful.

"The Enquirer thinks that Mr. Bryan owes that much to the party which has so signally honored him.

"If Mr. Bryan has faith in his party's fidelity to its principles why not free it of his candidacy and thus strengthen it for its contest with its antagonist? Mr. Bryan received the cordial support of Judge Harmon in his campaign of 1900; of Governor Johnson in both contests, and of scores of other men worthy to lead the party to victory and who can command electoral votes and a popular support far beyond his own. Why not, then, let him rise above desire to lead regardless of results and give way to the nobler and higher duty of crowning the party with success and placing it in possession of the administration of the country?

The country would rejoice if Mr. Bryan did this. The Democratic party would again become a giant in strength, a Samson in political power if Mr. Bryan would but embrace this opportunity to immortalize himself by thrusting vain and fruitless ambition aside."

Let no democrat undertake to hold his breath until Bryan surrenders his job as boss of the democratic party. He will take care of his own interests first.

Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. J. B. Keith, who died Saturday evening, occurred this morning. Quite a number of the friends and neighbors were out early to attend the short religious services at the residence before the remains were removed to Scottsburg. The funeral party boarded the 7:54 car at the Brown street crossing. The funeral service proper occured at the Christian church at Scottsburg, immediately after the arrival there. The remains were accompanied this morning by J. B. Kieth, Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Shinness, Mr. Kieth and Mrs. Morris, of Scottsburg, Miss Ida Otte, John Vande Walle, Sherman Day, William Ahlert, Mr. Ruddick, Rev. Harley Jackson and a number of other relatives and friends.

Saw National Encampment.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lockman have returned from Peoria, Ill. where they visited relatives several days. They were there during the week of the national encampment of the Modern Woodmen and were delighted with the drilling of the six thousand Uniformed Foresters. The street cars in the city of Peoria carried 465,882 passengers during the six days from Sunday till Friday inclusive, the week of the carnival. The largest traffic was on Thursday when they carried 101,709. More than 81,000 were carried on Sunday and more than 83,000 on Wednesday.

Talcum Time

THE disagreeable features of summer time are largely overcome by the use of good talcum powder—the kind sold by your druggist. We have all the popular kinds known to be good. See our fine perfumes and toilet requisites.

Telephone Talk.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:

The following clipping from the editoral page of the Indianapolis News of Saturday is applicable to the telephone situation in Seymour.

"The most important single paragraph in the business men's report on the telephone situation is the one with which the report ends:

"It is in our opinion advisable and better for the citizens of Indianapolis, that service be furnished by only one company, provided an agreement can be made securing from that one company good service at all times at reasonable rates with power reserved by the city to maintain and enforce these conditions."

Now this is the position taken at all times by the new telephone company. They have at all times recognized the evils of a dual system and have borne with indifferent service, excessive rates and even the exclusion of the farmer for a long time rather than assume the responsibility of the possibility of a dual system. There is an end to all things however, and finally the new company was launched, with a franchise however that was all the safeguards mentioned in the above editorial, a franchise that protects the people at every point, a franchise that makes a rate of $3 a year per phone, less than the old company, and places a penalty on raising rates, and a reward for reducing them; a franchise which prevents over capitalization which is the main cause of excessive rates; a franchise that gives all the farmers telephone connection at a fixed rate satisfactory to them; a franchise that requires the directors to make and publish a sworn annual statement of receipts and expenses, assets and liabilities in details; a franchise that requires the directors to make a detailed published statement of the use to be made of funds derived from any future bond sale and in addition get the consent of three-fourths of the stock before they can issue such bonds.

Just before letting our contracts the old company was given a chance to give Seymour telephone service under less rigid conditions than these but flatly refused to do so. Under these conditions the new company feel they are entitled to the united and exclusive patronage of telephone patrons in Seymour, thus preventing a dual system, which the old company has repeatedly warned us against. The new company congratulate themselves on the fact they have bound themselves by their franchise to do the very thing the Indianapolis business men are asking for that city.

Two Shows At Denver.

John P. Fagan, traffic manager of the Wallace & Hagenback Shows, came up from Louisville Monday afternoon and spent a few hours with friends and relatives in this city. Mr. Fagan has a good position with these big shows but he seems to enjoy getting back here to meet Pat Rooney and many other friends. The show was in the Dakotas Monday and will be in Denver, Col. two days next week. So if the contests over the anti-injunction plank, the temperance plank, the temporary and permanent chairmen of the convention and the vice presidential nomination fail to warm up enough to interest the delegates they can lay off and go to the show.

That Other Suit.

"That other suit" which W. T. Abbott, one of the attorneys for the Southern Indiana Railway Company, said was going to be filed, has been placed on the docket. The title of the suit is the Southern Indiana Railway Company vs the Railroad Commission of Indiana and the Big Four Railway Company. The case was filed in the Bartholomew Circuit Court late Saturday afternon and prays the court to grant an injunction against the commission and the Big Four. W. T. Abbott, Frank S. Jones and Carl E Wood appear as attorneys for the Southern Indiana.—Columbus Republican.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that on the 22nd day of June 1908 the Common Council of the city of Seymour, Ind. adopted a resolution declaring that it was necessary to improve Oak street in said city from Lynn street to Beech street by grading and paving the side walks on both sides of said street, with concrete, and fixing the council chamber of said city where all persons may be heard at eight o'clock p. m. on the 20 of July 1908.

FRED EVERBACK,
Clerk of the city of Seymour, Ind.

Doing Good Drilling.

The Modern Woodmen drilled on the brick street near the intersection of Tipton and Chestnut streets again Monday evening. The team has been drilling frequently of late with a view to attending the State Log Rolling at Bedford this week. If the boys attend and drill as well as they did on the brick streets here Monday evening they will be pretty sure to bring home some of the prize money.

No Occasion For Alarm.

In regard to the smallpox at Vallonia Dr. H. E. Yost says there is only one mild case there and that was contracted on the train between California and Vallonia. The case has been under strict quarantine from the first and no one at Vallonia has been exposed, so that persons going to Vallonia on business or pleasure need have no alarm, for they will be absolutely safe.

Pack of Wolves.

A dozen Siberian wolves, four old ones and eight cubs, belonging to the Harris Comedy Company, attracted considerable attention at the intersection of Second and Chestnut streets today. The animals are owned by the Harris Comedy Company which is playing here this week under a tent and will be used tonight in presenting the play, "Daniel Boone."

Telephone Talk

Part of the exchange equipment for the new telephone company has arrived and the remainder has been shipped. The intention is to have it in position by August 1. Those in charge of the construction say the phones already contracted for will be put in and connected up by August 15.

Notice.

The renovation of the German M. E. church is so far completed that cleaning should begin. The committee kindly requests not only the members of the Aid, but all the ladies of the church to come Wednesday morning and help to put the house in condition for worship next Sunday.

Sunday School Picnic.

The German M. E. Sunday School will hold its annual picnic on the 4th of July on Fox's Grove near Reddington. A special car will leave the interurban station at 8:45 a. m. Come all, bring your friends with you and enjoy a good time.

Mayor,s Court.

Charles Mitchell was arrested Monday morning and pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery. He was fined $5 and costs by Mayor Kyte, amounting to a total of $15.80.

Went to Columbus.

Among those who attended the Lutheran church anniversary at Columbus Sunday were Alfred Pfaffenberger, Minnie and Bertha Breitfield, F. H. Heideman and wife and daughter, John Grelle and wife and daughter, Alma Steinkamp, Clara Smith, Elizabeth Schulte, Eph and Otto Ahlbrand, Fred Droege, Julia, Edna and Alma Droege, Bertha Resiner, Chas. Nolting and wife, Margaret Ahlbrand, Emma Krueger, Lillie Brunow, Bertha Henkel, of Elyria, O., Edna Renner, of Aurora, Hulda Keller, of Ft. ## Convention Reports.

"A good delegate to a Sunday school convention gets all he can, but he doesn't can all he gets," said Marion Lawrence at the Vincennes convention recently. Seymour has had four great conventions nearby within the past months: Indianapolis, Vincennes, Cincinnati and Louisville, the last the greatest Sunday School convention ever held anywhere. The First Baptist Sunday school has had delegates and visitors at each of these conventions and they will make their report at the church Wednesday evening at 7:30 instead of the regular prayer meeting. Some of the lively convention songs will be sung, and brief crisp reports of the best things heard will be made. Everyone interested in Sunday school work is invited to attend and catch some of the enthusiasm which these convention visitors found in these great meetings.

The Gold Mine Annual Loom-End Sale

Begins Monday, July 13th, THE BARGAIN EVENT OF THE SEASON. Months of preparation by our buyers brings to you no fake sale but actual values which are not to be duplicated by any house in southern Indiana, as our purchasing power for five stores means more than ordinary values. The late slump market gave the cash buyers great advantage over the long term customers and we are always there with the SPOT CASH of any size for reliable merchandise. Wait for the big sale, we are getting ready, Monday July 13.

THE GOLD MINE DEPARTMENT STORE.

Store closed Saturday all day. Open Friday night until 10 o'clock.

Recital Tonight.

The annual [illegible] tonight of the Seymour School of Music promises to be a very enjoyable affair. The program is one that all will appreciate. A feature of the program will be an address by Dr. Walton Perkins, the president of the Chicago Conservatory of music, who is an entertaining speaker and a musician of rare talent. He will also give one of the musical numbers. The recital will be at Society Hall. Admission free.

Good Show.

The attractions at the Airdome is said to be one of the best there this season. There was a good crowd out last night and the applause showed that every act was enjoyed. Axtell and Pollard, the tramp and the maid, and the dog Heine, John Fields, the singing commedian, and the illustrated song by Hazel Reed captured the audience.

After Prize Money.

The Modern Woodmen at Heltonville will attempt to capture one of the $25 prizes at the Log Rolling at Bedford by having a larger per cent. of their membership in line than any other lodge outside of Bedford. We will probably be satisfied with one of the drill prizes which the local team will go after.

Business Notice.

The new grocery firm of Hopewell & Brand will be ready for business tomorrow morning, July 1st, in the Kasting building on S. Chestnut street. Call and see us and you will be given courteous treatment.

HOPEWELL & BRAND.

Domestic Laundry will be closed the Fourth. Send all laundry in by 10 a. m. Thursday. jy1d

Ed Eldridge drove to the country Monday to look after some of his lightning rod contracts.

AHEAD OF TIME.

Sun's Eclipse Came Sooner Than Scientists Expected.

Washington, June 29.—The eclipse of the sun served to attract astronomers and spectators to the United States naval observatory here Sunday where the event was observed with keen interest. The day could hardly have been more favorable for the purpose.

The first contact occurred thirty-five minutes and twenty-eight seconds after 9 o'clock in the morning, which was ten seconds ahead of the predicted time, while the second contact occurred forty-nine minutes and two seconds past noon, being twenty-three seconds ahead of the predicted time. There were five scientists taking observations with the different observatory instruments, and the variation of time among the different observers was less than two seconds.

Professor George H. Peters of the naval observatory took seven photographs, which showed in addition to the moon projected upon the sun, three fairly large sun spot groups.

NIGHT RIDER CONVICTED.

Prominent Young Physician Given One Year In Penitentiary.

Paducah, Ky., June 29.—The first Night Rider conviction in the state was obtained when the jury returned a verdict of one year in the penitentiary in the case of Dr. E. Champion at Benton. Dr. Champion, who is a prominent young physician of Lyon county, was accused of participating in the raid on Birmingham, Marshall county, last April, when John Cruggs, an aged negro, and his few months old granddaughter were shot and killed and several negroes whipped. The jury in the Champion case was from Paducah. Judge Reed took this action after two Marshall county juries failed to convict. There are nearly 100 cases on the docket.

Trial to Be Secret.

Berlin, June 30.—Prince Philip Zu Eulenburg in on trial on charges of perjury and subonation of perjury in connection with recent scandals, the revelation of which created such a sensation. The proceedings, according to the lawyers engaged in the case, are likely to be greatly prolonged, possibly lasting for weeks. On the states attorney's demand for the exclusion of the public and the press in consequence of the evidence endangering public morals, the judge had the court cleared not to be re-opened until a verdict was reached.

A Mysterious Tragedy.

Philadelphia, June 30.—The laying bare of a most sensational murder is promised by the authorities in the case of Dr. William H. Wilson, of this city, who died at his home on Friday night after drinking a portion of a bottle of ale which had been sent to him. An autopsy proves conclusively that Dr. Wilson died of cyanide of potassium poisoning. The police have learned, they state, that Dr. Wilson attended during a fatal illness a member of the family of a young man who will be charged with being the poisoner.

C. T Benton, of Brownstown, was here this morning on his way home from a business trip to Crothersville.

INDIAN TRIBES PASSING.

In a Short Time the Moccasined Red Man will Be Only a Tradition.

Thirty years from now it will be difficult, perhaps impossible, to find an Indian tribe in the country, living in tribal relations, according to the officials of the bureau of Indian affairs, says the Boston Transcript. The day of the befeathered, blanketed, moccasined red man is passing. It will pass sooner than it is generally realized. The Indian problem would appear to be near its settlement and will soon be listed with the questions of the past. Fifty years from now, if another James Fenimore Cooper arises, he will have little but his imagination to draw upon unless he goes north into Canada, or journeys south into Mexico.

Of course, the Indian blood will remain and will be traceable for many generations to come, and for a long time to come there will be Indians of mixed and unmixed blood scattered among the whites. But these Indians will earn their living as other folks or will be exterminated, the hunting ground will be but a tradition, and the weapons of the chase will be supplanted by the tools and appliances of civilization.

The United States government is proceeding on the theory that the Indian is a desirable person when he gives up his tribal relations, proceeds to live as the whites do, earning his own livelihood, and not being a ward of the nation—in other words, when he ceases to be an Indian and blends with American citizenship.

Persons of sentiment and those with veneration for the traditions of the past will probably cry out when they understand just what the government is undertaking to do about the Indian. Many will probably insist that the Indian should be preserved in his aboriginal character, as a relic of the past, just as they insist on the preservation of whatever has historic value.

But the government finds this troublesome and expensive and entertains much doubt whether it is a kindness to the Indian. At any rate, the extirpation of the Indian is proceeding as steadily and ruthlessly as the wiping out of any conquered people of history ever proceeded. To be sure, it is not being done by cruelty. Probably any other course would mean that the Indian would ultimately become extinct.

Commissioner of Indian Affairs Francis E. Leupp has given a quarter of a century to the study of the Indian problem. He is a trusted friend of the Indian, and a believer in him, and he believes that the best kindness the government can show to the red man is to help him take up the white man's burden and cease to be a nomad.

There are two lines on which Mr. Leupp and his aids are working. The first object is to break up the reservations and to get white men to settle on these reservations and mingle with the Indians. The other object is to encourage the Indian to leave the reservation and to go out and work by the day or week or month, as the white man does, taking his chances with the white man.

These results from these two methods are the same. They educate the Indian in the ways of the white man. Mr. Leupp says it is an education by absorption. The Indian has brains, but he is ultraconservative. Go to the Indian and tell him he is to be taught something, and he will tell you he doesn't want to learn it. But if the Indian is set down in the midst of conditions where he can learn by observation and absorption, he is apt to learn readily enough. This is the experience of the Indian affairs officials.

PEPPERING THE ABSENT.

Tongues Fly Immediately Our Backs Are Turned.

While most people enjoy nothing so much as discussing their friends, it is astonishing how much we all resent remarks being made about ourselves. So much is this the case, that on the rare occasions when we realize that we are being criticised at all, we find ourselves angrily demanding by what right our neighbors dare sit in judgment on us.

As a rule, of course, it does not occur to people that they are ever discussed at all, except, perhaps, as objects of admiration and envy. Many of us will cheerfully pick all our friends and relatives to pieces and leave the room without a thought of what may be said the moment our backs are turned. We are so convinced that we are exceptions to every rule that we cannot believe ourselves to be the objects of adverse criticism. Though we usually take no pains to understand the motives underlying the actions of others, we are furiously indignant if our own—which we know to be excellent, even if our conduct is not altogether irreproachable—are not taken into consideration. Always ready to excuse our own failings, wrich, by the way, we usually attribute to heredity, while taking entire credit to ourselves for our virtues, we take it for granted that our friends in the event of discussing us, will display the same leniency towards us which we feel toward ourselves. That they should discuss us at all strikes us, of course, not only as impertinent, but unkind and uncharitable.

It does not occur to us that it is not only the most natural thing in the world for our friends to do, but also that it is their habitual custom. Under these circumstances, and since the idea that one must say nothing behind a man's back which one would not say to his face is apparently counted absurd, so why not cheerfully yield ourselves as a topic of conversation to our friends always provided, of course, they are kind enough to think us sufficiently interesting for the purpose.

HATCHING CHINOOK SALMON.

This Is an Attractive Exhibit in the New York Aquarium's Troughs.

A sight that many visitors at the aquarium linger over is that of about 20,000 little Chinook salmon, with their yolk sacs still attached, just hatched out in the aquarium's hatchery, says the New York Sun.

Salmon eggs are about as big as peas and of the traditional pink salmon color. Spread out in the egg trays of the hatching grounds they make a striking exhibit that is sure to catch the eye.

Then as the processes of hatching advance the eggs become a little paler and dimmer in tint, and later of a still duller purplish hue, this being the color of a thin filmy outer shell that the hatched-out fish leaves when, with its yolk sac attached, it emerges and which then crumbles into waste.

But if the eggs had thus outwardly grown somewhat dimmer in color, the yolk sacs with which the little fishes come out of them are brighter in color than the eggs ever were, for these are more than of a pink salmon color; they are of a bright, deep, clear pink that is all but red and all of that same high tint. And here in the hatching troughs are close to 20,000 of these little salmon, each having one of those little bright red yolk sacs attached to it, the sac being of about the size and shape of a small bean somewhat flattened, with the little salmon's head appearing at one end of it, while at the other its wiggly little tail projects, the little fish being now about an inch in length; and as they are always wiggling, these innumerable little bright red objects in the troughs with fishes' heads and tails attached are ever in motion.

The mouths of the fishes are not yet open; the yolk sacs are really food sacs from which at this period of their existence they absorb food and sustenance and gradually they will absorb the sac itself and become each a complete and perfect little fish, and then nature will open their mouths and they will begin to feed in the usual way.

A National Trait.

A traveler returned from Jaffa tells this tale at his own expense. Having journeyed to the historical seaport on his way to Jerusalem, he succeeded in hiring a conveyance to carry him to the station. By speech and gesture he informed the native driver that he wished to be carried in a leisurely, sightseeing fashion through as many as possible of the principal thoroughfares of Jaffa, and to be delivered at the terminal just in time to take the outgoing train.

He had no sooner seated himself in the vehicle, however, than the driver whipped up his horse and whirled the dismayed traveler at a furious pace through all the dust and over all the stones of the notoriously rough streets of Jaffa. The passenger was too busily employed in saving his bones to be able to see anything of the interesting town.

Arriving at the station, he found that he still had two hours to wait.

"Why in the world," he demanded, indignantly, "did you ever hurry like that?"

"You American," responded the driver, with an expressive shrug. "All American like go very much fast."

Best Limericks.

I am told by the conductor of the largest limerick competition that the best limericks came from Scotland, Ireland and Wales, in that order. The Scotch, he said, have a peculiar way for neat and apt rhymes, not so witty as the Irish, but possessing a happier turn of phrase. And thus it was that a large portion of the prizes have gone north of the Tweed.—Western Mail.

Tempting Fate.

"Dost hear that?" asked the fair maid mentioned by the Atlanta Journal. There was a sound of a heavy step.

"'Tis father. Fly, sweetheart, fly!"

"You mean flee," corrected the lover.

"As you like," said the maid, "but this is no time for entomological distinctions."

Taking No Chances.

A farmer who took much pride in the looks of his fattening pigs once purchased a pair from a neighbor. Upon delivery at the usual age of eight weeks, they seemed to him rather small.

Eying them dubiously, he remarked, dryly, 'Guess I had better keep the cat shut up for a few days."

Salvage.

Mrs. Gramercy—I hear the customs authorities seized all the finery you brought over from Paris. Will it be a total loss?

Mrs. Park—Why, no, dear; I got my name in the papers.—Puck.

Open Machine—No Wash.

Mrs. Redd—Mr. Greene has come to take you out in his automobile, dear.

Miss Redd—Well, shall I wash my face, or hasn't he got the limousine?—Yonkers Statesman.

Anyway, the forgetful man seldom forgets to forget.

EATING FROZEN POULTRY.

Some Mistaken Ideas About Ptomaine Poisoning—Cold Storage.

When people speak of ptomaine poisoning they are commonly making use of an expression which conceals an ignorance, by no means confined to unscientific circles, of the chemical reaction which has in fact taken place, says the London Post. A paper recently read by Dr. William F. Boss summarizes rather effectively some of the known facts concerning the actual poisons which can be distinguished when so-called ptomaine poisoning takes place. Of these the most important, and, in fact, the only one which has been isolated in the pure state is "sepsin," and twenty milligrammes of this would probably poison anyone. The symptoms and effects of it are very similar to those of arsenic poisoning. By heating to about 60 degrees centigrade for a hour "sepsin" is changed to "cadaverine" and rendered innocuous; from which one might jump to the conclusion that since the poisoning from bad meat is due to the presence of sepsin that cooked meat ought never to be poisoned. This is not quite the case, because in ordinary cooking processes the interior portions of the meat or fish may not reach a temperature sufficiently high to destroy the poison if present.

Besides the poisoning by ptomaines the question of bacterial poisoning has also to be considered, though there is no essential difference in the poisonous effect. Cold storage is sometimes blamed, and not altogether without reason, for effects of poisoning. Low temperatures will not destroy bacteria and will not even prevent their multiplication while the material in which they live is liquid. But if meat is stored at temperatures low enough to produce a solidly frozen substratum it will keep indefinitely, since there can be no bacterial growth of activity in ice. Fowls have been kept and found quite good after four years' storage at a temperature 10 degrees below freezing. Poisoning from "frozen meat" arises from quite a different cause. In markets it is often the practice to thaw the meat and poultry before selling it. This thawing is done by soaking in cold water, and as fresh water is not used for each fowl, or each joint, the water naturally becomes foul and infection takes place. Moreover, it is by no means uncommon after meat or poultry has been thawed to return it, with all its new-found germs, to the cold-storage room. This refrigerated stock always shows marked deterioration. One point that emerged from a discussion on Dr. Boss' paper was that "sepsin" is present in small quantities in all "high" meat or game, but that by practice a certain amount of artificial immunity against the poison can be gained.

Seeing Things Big.

A Washington scientist, in illustrating recently what the telescope and the microscope have done in extending the powers of vision, employed the following figures:

Imagine the size of an eye, and therefore of a man capable of seeing in a natural way what the ordinary eye sees with the aid of a large telescope, and also the size of a man who could plainly see with his natural eye what we see with a powerful microscope. The first man would be a giant several miles tall, and the second a midget of a very small fraction of an inch in height.

Miss Bayck Baye.

She came from college; so, in speech,
I sought her lofty plane to reach,
And to my thoughts such figures gave
As, "From the cradle to the grave."
But ah! I very quickly learned
Such common speech she must have spurned;
For life's confines she mentioned were
"From bassinet to sepulcher."

It may not be a stony path,

My Geography.

I wish a great white ship would come,
And carry me, oh, so far,
Where palm-trees grow and simoons blow
And Arab caravans wind and go,
And the green, shady oases are,
Suppose that this magic boat should sail,
Oh, sail with us leagues away,
We could see ice-floes and Eskimos,
And the northern lights all gold and rose,
Where the sun shines by night and by day.

I think if I really saw the world
Geography would seem true;
But do they mean that Mexico's green,
And England yellow? and I have seen
In my atlas that Holland is blue!
O dear, how I wish that ship would sail
And teach my lesson to me!
For though I study so hard in my book,
And even when at the map I look,
I can't learn my geography!

Meet or Meets?

The cashier of a certain bank had a placard put up one day, which was printed as follows: "The bill committee meets at 10 o'clock every morning." One of the directors came in soon afterwards, and having read the notice, he begged the cashier's pardon, but said that the verb should have been "meet," in the plural number, because the committee was composed of several persons, and their action could not properly be expressed by a verb in the singular number. Other directors came in presently, and all took part in the discussion, which was finally referred to a well-known linguist, who promptly said that the singular verb, "meets," was right. It seems strange that a serious discussion should take place over a matter that is, after all, so simple as this. The committee was, and is, a body of men acting as a body in meeting, and it meets and decides questions in that capacity. Of course, the members, as individuals, "meet" each other, but when acting collectively they act as one. To say that the committee "meet," is as bad an error as to say that the "board of directors 'have' declared a dividend," or that the "Air-Line Railroad 'have' determined to run trains every hour."

Cut-Up Pictures.

There is a craze just now for sectional pictures. The grown-ups have taken up this children's game and are so fond of it that they have formed clubs in Boston just to play it. If you want to make a sectional picture game I'll tell you how.

First, you choose a large colored picture—perhaps your mother will let you take one from a large magazine—and you paste it on a sheet of cardboard and after it is dry cut it up into little pieces with nice, irregular edges. The "grown-ups" paste the picture on a thin sheet of wood and cut it up with a scroll saw and afterward polish the edges with sandpaper, but this is much harder to do, although it makes the game more durable. When they are all cut out mix up the pieces and then try to fit them together to make the picture again. Even when you have cut out the game yourself and know what the picture ought to look like when it is finished you will find it hard to put it together again and when some one else has made it and you don't know what the picture is going to be it is harder. And it is still harder if, when you cut it out, you separate the different colors of the picture by cutting along the outlines of the figures. If any one asks you to make something for a fair you might make some sectional picture games.—Chicago News.

Timber and Cast Iron.

The strength of materials is a factor of the utmost importance in all building operations, and builders are guided by scientifically conducted tests, a record of which they all have. Here are some of the figures that these tests show: The testing piece being 12 inches in length and one inch square, and the wood being seasoned, the breaking weight of white pine is 135 pounds; yellow pine, 150 pounds; chestnut, 170 pounds; ash 175 pounds; white oak 240 pounds; hickory 270 pounds; iron 5,781 pounds. The same materials will bear with safety the following weights: White pine 95 pounds; yellow pine 100 pounds; chestnut 105 pounds; ash 115 pounds; white oak 196 pounds; hickory 200 pounds; iron 4,000 pounds.

NEW RAILWAY SAFETY DEVICE.

Invention Automatically Places Torpedoes on Track of Erring Train.

A signal device that automatically places torpedoes in the path of trains was exhibited at New Durham, N. J., Saturday by the inventor, Robert J. Zorge, a member of the Chicago board of trade, to a party of reporters. The safety device has been installed on "block No. 3" of the West Shore Railroad, just west of the entrance to the Weehawken tunnel, says the New York Tribune.

The device looks like a big iron hogshead sunk in the ground. Inside is a wheel with twenty spokes. On each of the spokes is a tin-cased torpedo attached to an arm, and the duty of the complicated cogs and levers beneath the simple looking wheel is to thrust out these torpedoes upon the track so that the drivers of an engine may cause them to explode.

Mr. Zorge's system places in each "block" of a railroad three circuits, "approach," "locking" and "danger." The length of a block is determined by the nature of the traffic, and at the Weehawkee tunnel it is a mile. A train passing the approach circuit acts, through its iron wheel and axles, as a conductor which carries the electric current from the point where it is received across to another wire, through which it runs to the armature beside the torpedo machine. When the train passes beyond the point, a mile distant, it similarly readjusts the current, leaving the entrance to that block clear.

The point of the device is that if while the train is running through the block another train should come along so close behind as to pass the approach circuit this contact would de-energize the current. Then the mehanism of the signal would be set working and one of the spokes would be thrust out to the track surface and hold a torpedo there to be exploded. The concussion would put the engineer on his guard if he had not noticed the semaphore signal.

German Humor.

The tendency of the German comic papers to employ continuously the same characters as "producers of mirth" is the subject of an article in a Berlin paper by Ludwig Bauer. The writer mentions as the most conspicuous of the funny figures the absent-minded professor whose habitual umbrella-losing proclivities have made generations laugh. This figure had its origin at a time, he says, when the man of letters was a helpless person in the active world—a dreamer dwelling in realms away from the actual and therefore blind to his surroundings. In this form he has been represented in the comic papers. But Germany, he thinks, not the professor, has been and is being caricatured. The professor to-day must be a wide-awake man, for science is no longer an island. These are not the days for sleep and for dreams. Another abused character is the lieutenant who, having no foe to fight, is always shown as making conquests where Amor has command. The old maid is another of the stock figures, and one of equal importance is Mr. Newlyrich. Of the latter it is said: "He is always full of fear and suspicion. He knows that he has been misplaced, and he sways from side to side like a timid rope walker. This makes him real funny, and we must laugh at his antics."

Oldest Organ in the World.

In the Baltic sea, forty miles from the mainland, lies the Swedish island Gothland, a Mecca for students of early Gothic architecture. In Wisby alone, the chief town of the island, with its population of 8,000 souls, may be studied what remains of no less than ten churches, some of which date from the eleventh and twelfth centuries. The oldest of them is the Church of the Holy Ghost, completed about 1046.

Prof. Hennerberg, director in a German music school, and especially interested in the study of medieval organs, visited fifty-nine churches in Gothland, and in a little village called Sundre came upon the remnant of what is unquestionably the oldest known organ in existence. The case alone has survived the fret of seven centuries; the holes for the pedals and manuals are placed as in modern instruments, and inside one can see the chember for the bellows and judge of their action; the exterior is adorned with paintings dating from about 1240.

When this ancient instrument could no longer serve its original purpose, it was used as a sacristy, and for the safeguard of holy vessels and vestments was kept in careful repair; hence its excellent preservation to our day.

WOMAN'S BACKACHE

The back is the mainspring of woman's organism. It quickly calls attention to trouble by aching. It tells, with other symptoms, such as nervousness, headache, pains in the loins, weight in the lower part of the body, that a woman's feminine organism needs immediate attention.

In such cases the one sure remedy which speedily removes the cause, and restores the feminine organism to a healthy, normal condition is

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Will Young, of 6 Columbia Ave., Rockland, Me., says:

"I was troubled for a long time with dreadful backaches and a pain in my side, and was miserable in every way. I doctored until I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. I read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and decided to try it; after taking three bottles I can truly say that I never felt so well in my life."

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I had very severe backaches, and pressing-down pains. I could not sleep, and had no appetite. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me and made me feel like a new woman."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

A Well-Rounded Course.

Down in Georgia last summer the citizens of a town of about six thousand people arranged for a Chautauqua Assembly. They held the meetings in a large tent about a mile from town, says a writer in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, and the attendance was large from the first day.

An enterprising showman heard of the large crowds and came to town the second day with a steam merry-go-round, which he located about halfway between the town and the Chautauqua grounds.

Along in the afternoon a young man from the country districts was accosted by a citizen of the town.

"Well, Ezry, I suppose you been in to the Chautauqua?"

"I shore have. Just come from thar now."

"How'd you like it?" asked the townsman.

"Fine!" the young man replied, enthusiastically. "I rode on the thing nine times."

"TWO TOPERS."

A Teacher's Experience.

"My friends call me 'The Postum Preacher,'" writes a Minn. school teacher, "because I preach the gospel of Postum everywhere I go, and have been the means of liberating many 'coffee-pot slaves.'

"I don't care what they call me so long as I can help others to see what they lose by sticking to coffee, and can show them the way to steady nerves, clear brain and general good health by using Postum.

"While a school girl I drank coffee and had fits of trembling and went through a siege of nervous prostration, which took me three years to rally from.

"Mother coaxed me to use Postum, but I thought coffee would give me strength. So things went, and when I married I found my husband and I were both coffee topers and I can sympathize with a drunkard who tries to leave off his cups.

"At last in sheer desperation, I bought a package of Postum, followed directions about boiling it, served it with good cream, and asked my husband how he liked the coffee.

"We each drank three cups apiece, and what a satisfied feeling it left. Our conversion has lasted several years and will continue as long as we live, for it has made us new—nerves are steady, appetites good, sleep sound and refreshing."

Bad Sprained Ankle Cured.

Three years ago our daughter sprained her ankle and had been suffering terribly for two days and nights and had not slept a minuet. Mr. Stallings, of Butler, Tenn., told us of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. We went to the store that night and got a bottle of it aud bathed her ankle two or three times and she went to sleep and had a good night's rest. The next morning she was much better and in a short time could walk around and had no more trouble with her ankle—E. M. Brumitt, Hampton, Tenn. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by C. W. Milhous.

Killed at Crossing.

Huntington, Ind., June 30.—Mrs. Charles McNown, of Andrews, while riding in a hack at Andrews, was struck by a Wabash train on the railroad crossing and instantly killed. Two other passengers in the hack escaped. The hack cleared the track safely, but the passengers were alarmed by the close proximity of the train and jumped.

Stomach Troubles.

Many remarkable cures of stomach troubles have been effected by Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. One man who had spent over two thousand dollars for medicine and treatment was cured by a few boxes of these tablets. Price 25 cents. Samples free at C. W. Milhous drug store.

Swallows Deadly Dose.

Huntington, Ind., June 30.—Edward T. Brown, extensive property holder, and engaged in the real estate business, committed suicide at his home by taking carbolic acid. He is said to have been addicted to the morphine habit, which he was unable to break off, and being denied the use of the drug by his attendant physician is said to have been the cause.

TROOPS ARE READY

Mexican Revolutionists Need Not Look to This Country For Comfort.

BORDER IS TO BE GUARDED

Military Posts In Proximity to the Mexican Border Are Expecting Early Orders.

Fugitive Insurgents From Del Rio Are Likely to Be Given a Hot Reception.

Washington, June 30.—The war department has ordered troops sent to the Mexican border at Del Rio and other points to maintain order and prevent any violation of the neutrality laws.

Washington, June 30.—There is a possibility that United States troops may be called on to arrest any of the Mexican revolutionists who may cross the border in the effort to escape from the Mexican authorities. It cannot be learned that any actual orders to this effect have been given, as none of the officials having to do with the matter is willing to discuss just what is being done, except that every step possible is being taken to see that the neutrality laws shall be enforced. The United States authorities are sincerely working to this end and assurances have been received from the attorney-general of the United States and Governor Campbell, of Texas, that everything will be done to compel a strict enforcement of the law. Several military posts are in proximity to the border of Texas touching the state of Chiahua where the Mexican revolutionists seem to be doing most of their work and troops may be made ready quickly for any service required of them. They include the men at Fort Sam Houston, Fort Bliss, and at Fort Clarke. Senor Godroy, the Mexican charge at Washington, has had another talk with Acting Secretary Adee, of the State Department today at which the situation was discussed.

Mexico and the United States have an agreement, whereby the troops of either country may cross the boundary of the other in pursuit of hostile Indians, which may serve as the basis for any steps that might be taken in assisting Mexico to capture the revolutionists.

DENIED BY MEXICO.

Disturbance Not Considered Important By Diaz Government.

City of Mexico, June 30.—No news of any sort has been received at the capitol that would indicate that there had been a repetition of the disorders similar to those which occurred at the towns of Viesca and Las Vacas. On the contrary at the departments of the Interior, War and State comes the report that absolute quiet reigns in the region where the two small bands of malcontents had been operating.

Through private telegrams of inquiry received here it was made evident that untruthful and sensational reports relating to alleged captures and assaults were in circulation in the United States. One story was to the effect that the town of Jiminez, a place of some eleven thousand inhabitants, had been assaulted and captured by revolutionists. At the interior department and at the office of the president of the Mexican Central railroad, the correspondent of the Associated Press was assurred that the report was absolutely untrue. Word from Torrean, a thriving city of some 30,000 inhabitants and five banks, declares that the place is as quiet as any well organized city of the United States.

SENOR CORRALE.

The entire direction of the campaign against the malcontents is under the direction of the secretary of the Interior Senor Corrale, who is also vice-president of the republic. Mr. Corrale explained that his department had taken charge of the affair because the policing force of the republic was under its supervision. The government, considering the marauders common criminals, is chasing them with rurales, the mounted police of the country.

"I will say what I said at the beginning," said the vice-president. "The trouble in the state of Coahuila is not a revolution, nor is it the commencement of one. A few ignorant men of the lower class have listened to the words of certain anarchistic Mexicans, now residing in the United States, and thereupon, set about to rob, murder, and pillage. Not a man of the better class has joined the ranks and their number is insignificant. They are now hiding in groups of twos, threes and fours somewhere in the wilds of Durango or Coahuila. The rurales will catch them. They will be tried as criminals."

Foreign Minister Mariscal declared that those manifestants who crossed the Rio Grande and are now on the United States soil will be extradited on the ground that the men are guilty of common crimes and not political offenses.

WHEELED INTO COURT.

Senator Platt Called Before Grand Jury In the Mae Wood Case.

New York, June 30.—United States Senator Thos. C. Platt was wheeled in a chair into the grand jury room in the criminal courts building to testify in the case of Mae C. Wood, who is charged with perjury in her suit for alleged divorce from the senator which collapsed several weeks ago. The evidence was presented to the grand jury by Assistant District Attorney Garvan. Edward Roland, the Senator's ex-valet, and Edward C. Hafeley, a printer, were also witnesses before the grand jury.

It was chiefly Hafeley's evidence which caused the failure of the woman's case against the Senator, and brought about her arrest and commitment under orders of Judge O'Gorman, who heard the evidence in the divorce case. Mr. Hafeley printed the blank forms of the marriage certificate which Miss Wood offered in court filled out to prove that she had been married to Senator Platt. Mr. Hafeley testified that these blanks were not printed until three months after the date on which Miss Wood alleged that she was married. Miss Wood testified that the certificates was filled out within a few hours after the ceremony was performed. She is now at liberty under bail.

Born in Iowa.

Our family were all born and raised in Iowa, and have used Chamberlain's Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy made at Des Moines for years. We know how good it is from long experience in the use of it. In fact when in El Paso, Texas, the writer.s life was saved by the prompt use of this remedy We are now engaged in the mercantile business at Narcoossee, Fla., and have introduced the remedy here. It has proven very successful and is constantly growing in favor. Ennis Bros. This remedy is for sale by C. W. Milhous.

Finally Voted the Money.

Paris, June 30.—The Socialists provoked a violent scene in the chamber of deputies, opposing the appropriation for President Falleries' visit to Russia. M. Vaillant accused the Russian Government of having committed innumerable murders and atrocites, while another Socialist deputy called the emperor an assassin. Both the president of the chamber, and M. Pichon, minister of foreign affairs, protested against these disgraceful expressions and amid a tremendous uproar the money finally was voted.

No Need of Suffering from Rheumatism.

It is a mistake to allow rheumatism to become chronic, as the pain can always be relieved, and most cases a cure effected by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. It makes sleep and rest possible. Even cases of long standing this liniment should be used on account of the relief it affords, 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by C. W. Milhous.

Made Blind By Jealousy.

Sailor Springs, Ill., June 30.—Jealous of his young wife and mistaking his son for another man, Julius Turner, sixty-eight years old, a civil war veteran and wealthy farmer of Clay City, Ills., shot his wife to death from ambush, seriously wounded his fifteen year old son and attempted to commit suicide near here. Turner and his wife had been seperated four years. Mrs. Turner and her son were walking from church when attacked.

Sore Nipples.

Any mother who has had experience with this distressing ailment will be pleased to know that a cure may be effected by applying Chamberlain's Salve as soon as the child is done nursing. Wipe it off with a soft cloth before allowing the baby to nurse. Many trained nurses use this Salve with best results. For sale by C. W. Milhous.

Awaited Horrid Death.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 30.—Fred Smith, coal miner, twenty-eight years old, committed suicide by stepping in front of a Vandalia railway train, ten miles west of this city. He remarked to a companion, "I will stay on the track and let the train knock me off," and he did so.

FOR A DRY PLANK

Movement Now on Foot to Commit Democracy to National Prohibition.

LED BY GENERAL WEAVER

Turned Down In Iowa, the Irrepressible Weaver Carries His Prohibition Plank to Denver.

Promises to Make Resolutions Committee Sit Up and Take Notice Before He's Through.

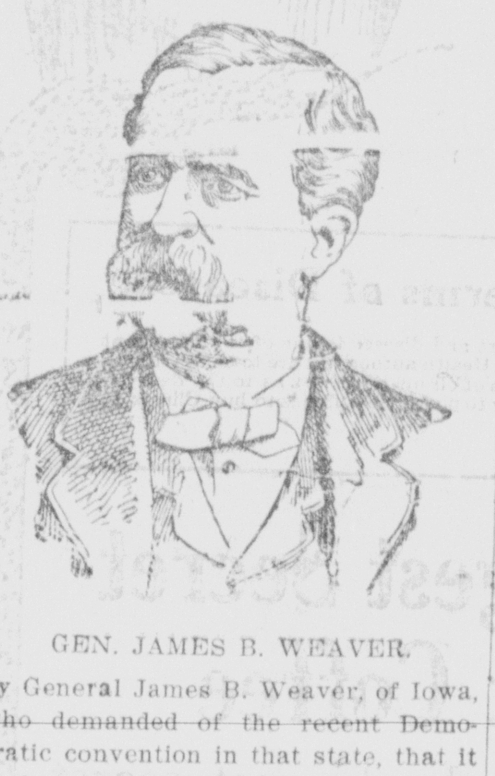
Denver, June 30.—The fight over the anti-injunction plank in the Democratic platform is not the only struggle in which the committee on resolutions and possibly the convention itself, may be involved.

It developes that the prohibition question is to be brought to the front and that a desperate effort will be made to have a plank declaring in its favor, placed in the platform. The prohibition movement will be headed by General James B. Weaver, of Iowa, who demanded of the recent Democratic convention in that state, that it declare in favor of prohibition. General Weaver and his followers, were not successful in their efforts in their own state, but nothing daunted by their failure have made arrangements to bring the matter up before the Democratic national convention. They claim moreover a strong backing from a number of southern delegations, which have recently passed prohibition laws, and it is declared confidently by General Weaver's adherents that if the Democratic national platform does not contain a prohibition plank it will only be for the reason that the hardest kind of fighting has been unable to secure its adoption.



GEN. JAMES B. WEAVER.

The anti-injunction plank continues to provoke a large amount of discussion among such party leaders as have already arrived for the convention. While opinions differ as to the exact nature of the plank which should be adopted, all are of one mind in saying that it shall be a definite and specific statement and shall leave no possible doubt in the mind of any reader as to where the party stands on this question. It is now generally thought, however, that the anti-injunction resolution will not provide for trials by jury in cases of contempt of court, or favor in any way measures which might be construed as interfering with the prerogatives of the federal courts.

The friends of Mr. Bryan say that such of his critics as are already expressing themselves in fear of a radical anti-injunction plank are fighting the air. The plank has not yet been written; it has not been drafted, and its form is still a matter which is under deep and careful discussion. It is said to be the desire of Mr. Bryan to confer with as many prominent leaders of the party as is possible before any decisive action in formulating this resolution is taken.

Chairman Taggart, of the national committee, has announced the chaplains for the last three days of the convention and the complete list is now as follows:

Tuesday, July 7, Rt. Rev. James J. Keane, of Wyoming; Wednesday, Rev. C. F. Reisner, of Grace M. E. Church, Denver; Thursday, Rabbi Samuel Kerch, of Seattle, Wn.; Friday, Rev. P. T. Ramsey, of St. Paul's M. E. Church, South, Denver.

Only one new name was mentioned today as a vice-presidential possibility. This was Governor George C. Chamberlain, of Oregon. He is in much favor with some of the party leaders and it is said that he will be personally acceptable to Mr. Bryan, if the latter is nominated.

Notices of contest have been filed with the national committee involving forty-five seats, but of this number the contests actually filed relate to thirteen seats. Six of these from the District of Columbia, and seven are from the first, second, fourth, fifth, and sixth Pennsylvania congressional districts. The first and second districts, however, have only one seat each in dispute. Notices of contests yet to be filed came from Chicago and Brooklyn. In the Chicago cases the first to the tenth congressional districts are involved. Contesting delegations from Brooklyn will come from the second to the seventh New York congressional districts inclusive, and relate to the McCarren-Murphy fight.

DOWN in Daviess county the democrats have nominated their candidate for representative and in a resolution adopted by the convention declared for local option with the county as a unit. Thus they pledge their candidate, if he is elected, to vote with the republicans on local option. The Daviess county democrats do not indorse the brewers local option plank inserted in the democratic state platform. In fact temperance democrats all over the state are individually declaring against this same plank. They do not propose to fall in behind the brewers and Tom Taggart and do their bidding when it comes to the local option question. Like the democrats of Daviess county they are declaring for a local option law with the county as a unit and will vote for members of the legislature who will support such a measure.

Sensational Reports Denied.

City of Mexico, June 29.—Stories emanating from border towns in the United States which declare that important towns in the northern part of Mexico are in danger of being attacked by revolutionists are declared here to be absurb nonsense. It is declared that there is no organized force in the north and that the bandits who sacked Viesca are being closely pressed by Mexican cavalry and will be captured within a few days. Reports that the town of Terreon is in danger of being attacked are absolutely without truth.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them Remedies of Known Composttion.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retorversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

THE LINCOLN LEAGUE.

Boom Started for William L. Taylor for National President.

Indianapolis, June 30.—When the National Association of Republican Clubs meets in Cincinnati, September 22, for its bi-onnial convention, the Lincoln League of Indiana will present Ex-Attorney General Wm. L. Taylor, of Indianapolis, for national president. He will be indorsed for that honor at a meeting of the officers of the league here Thursday. E. E. Neal, state president, said today that he has issued a call to the state and district officers of the league to meet at the Claypool hotel, Thursday, when the members of the Republican state committee, nominees on the state and congressional tickets, Senators Beveridge and Hemenway will gather to outline a plan of campaign. Taylor, he declared, is not an avowed candidate, but his friends in the league are very numerous and they are determined to present his name. They are arranging now to send a large delegation of rooters to the convention at Cincinnati. Many clubs are now being organized throughout the state, under the auspicies of the league, which expects to have a membership of 75,000 voters by the time the campaign opens.

Senator James A. Hemenway, of Booneville, arrived here today for a conference with some of his friends. The party leaders are more concerned over the legislative end of the campaign than the state ticket as they say the brewers and the business interests allied with them want to defeat Republican candidates in hopes of preventing the enactment of a county local option law at the next session. The Republicans have the advantage of starting with nineteen holdover members of the Senate, while the Democrats have but six. In the cities, however, there is said to be a strong movement against the Republican legislative tickets and the result is feared by some of the Republican leaders who are making their plans to re-elect Senator Hemenway. The latter has accepted an invitation to deliver the principle address at the emancipation day celebration of the negroes of Indiana at the state fair grounds, August 4.

The chances are that John E. Lamb, of Terre Haute, will be the Indiana member of the resolutions committee at the Denver convention. John W. Kern, of Indianapolis, has been elected chairman of the delegation and no one but Lamb is talked of for the resolutions committee. He is a corporation lawyer, but he is a loyal follower of Bryan. He says that he has not given the anti-injunction matter sufficient thought to be able to speak fully regarding the demands of Samuel Gompers and his associates on the injunction matter. Among the business men of this state there is said to be a deep-seated feeling that neither party should go far in changing the practice of the courts. The Republican anti-injunction plank, as colorless as it is considered by many of the leaders, is regarded as radical by most of the business men in Indiana, and they are liable to revolt if anything more radical is done along that line.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 29.—Harry K. Thaw left Poughkeapsie this morning in the custody of an under sheriff who will produce him in the Supreme Court at White Plains in obedience to a writ of habeas corpus issued Friday. Thaw was accompanied by his new attorney, Thos. Morschauser, of this city, who will ask Judge Mills to grant a jury trial and to order him detained in any place other than the Matteawan asylum until the question of his sanity has been judicated by a jury. As the question of Thaw's right to a jury trial was not raised in the first habeas corpus proceedings, it leaves a new issue to be presented.

Billiard and Pool Tables In Saloons Placed Under the Ban.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION

Ruling of an Indianapolis Judge, If Sustained, Will Prove of State-Wide Effect.

County Commissioners Have No Right, Court Says, to Grant Such Privileges.

Indianapolis, June 30.—Judge Pritchard, of the Criminal Court made a ruling with reference to the maintaining of billiard and pool tables in saloons that will prove of state-wide effect, if sustained by the upper courts to which it will be carried. He ruled that the County Commissioners have not the right to license the operation of pool and billiard tables in connection with saloons. Practically every saloon in the state now has billiard and pool tables under authority of the County Commissioners of the different counties.

A test case brought the ruling. Mike Garvey, West Washington street saloon keeper, was arrested some months ago, charged with operating an amusement device in a licensed room, contrary to the statute. He was found guilty in Police Court, but his attorney appealed to the Criminal Court. The case was submitted to the later court on an agreed state of facts.

It has been the custom for commissioners to issue additional license to applicants for saloon licenses when it is desired to carry on other business in connection with the saloon. There is a state law, however, forbidding the operation of any amusement device in connection with a saloon.

Judge Pritchard held that pool and billiard tables are devices for amusement and ruled that they could not be operated in saloons. An appeal will be taken.

NEW TRIAL REFUSED.

Harry Brunaugh Must Abide By Verdict of Jury.

Indianapolis, June 30.—Judge Carter in Criminal Court, overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of Harry Brunaugh, convicted of fraud against the city in the asphalt cases, and sentenced him to the penitentiary for a term of from two to fourteen years.

Brunaugh's attorneys then asked for an exception and presented a motion for arrest of judgment, based on the same ground as the motion for a new trial. This Judge Carter also overruled. The judge then announced the sentence.

Brunaugh's attorneys also asked that his departure for the penitentiary be deferred until July 9, in order to give him time to straighten up his business and to make a petition in Juvenile Court that his mother, Mrs. Helen C. Brunaugh, of Batavia, O., be given the partial custody of his child. Judge Carter granted the request.

Spencer, Ind., June 30.—Emery Cassell is on trial, charged with the murder of Thomas Mills, of Quincy, on the morning of February 7. More than 100 witnesses will be called in the case. The defense pleads not guilty to the indictment.

BOY TORTURED BY AWFUL HUMOR

Almost Covered with Eczema—No Night's Rest for Nearly a Year—Feared Lifelong Disfigurement—All Treatments Failed and Limit of Endurance Seemed Near.

PERFECT RECOVERY IS DUE TO CUTICURA

"With the exception of his hands and feet, my son Clyde (thirteen years old) was almost completely covered with eczema. Physicians treated him for nearly a year without helping him any. While they were very kind and did all in their power, yet nothing seemed to relieve him. And I had tried many remedies sent to me by kind friends but they all failed. His head, face, and neck were covered with large scabs which he would rub until they fell off. Then blood and matter would run out and that would be worse. Many a time he looked as if his ears would drop off. Friends coming to see him said that if he got well he would be disfigured for life.

"When it seemed as if he could possibly stand it no longer, I decided to try Cuticura. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. I used them in the evening and that was the first night for nearly a year that he slept. This may sound exaggerated to you, but in the morning there was a great change for the better. In about six weeks you could not have told that he had ever had anything wrong with him. I treated him twice a day for six months and at present he has a fine complexion and not a scar on his body. This story may seem overdrawn, but neither words nor pen can describe Clyde's suffering and how he looked. Our leading physician, Dr. ——, recommends the Cuticura Remedies for eczema. Mrs. Algy Cockburn, Shiloh, O., June 11, 1907."

Frequent shampoos with Cuticura Soap and weekly dressings with Cuticura stop falling hair, remove crusts, scales, and dandruff, destroy hair parasites, soothe irritated, itching surfaces, stimulate the hair follicles, supply the roots with nourishment, loosen the scalp skin, and make the hair grow upon a sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp, when all other remedies fail.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. ☞Mailed Free, Cuticura Book on Skin Diseases.

Caught by Hay Fork.

Goshen, Ind., June 30.—Samuel Yoder, of Harrison township, was impaled by the prong of a new combination hay rake and loading device, the steel passing through his thigh and upward into his abdomen. Fellow workmen saw him suddenly lifted into the air, shrieking and wriggling in terrible agony, and hastened to his relief. His injuries are fatal.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo Ohio. Sold by all druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

LIFE' SCARS.

They say the world is round, and yet
I often think it square;
So many little hurts we get
From corners here and there.
But one great truth in life I've found,
While journeying to the west:
The only folks who really wound
Are those we love the best.

The man you thoroughly despise
Can rouse your wrath, 'tis true;
Annoyance in your heart will rise
At things mere strangers do;
But those are only passing ills.
This rule all lives will prove:
The rankling wound which rakes and thrills
Is dealt by hands we love.

Love does not grow on every tree,
Nor true hearts yearly bloom.
Alas for those who only see
This truth across a tomb.
But, soon or late, the fact grows plain
To all through sorrow's test:
The only folks who give us pain
Are those we love the best.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

HIS DAUGHTER'S VOICE

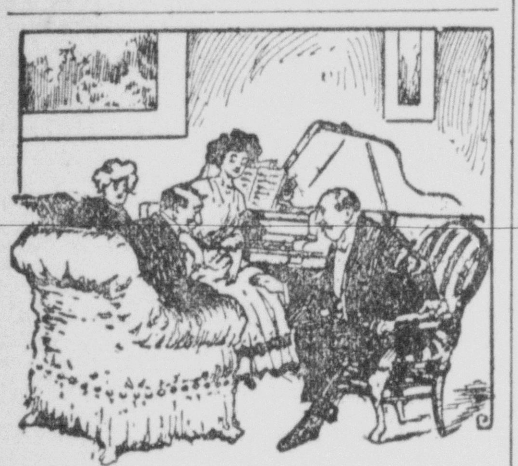
"My dear," said Bolsover, as he entered the parlor with the little, fat, black-mustached man, "I want to present Mr. Starpen. Mr. Starpen wants to hear Margaretta sing and I've promised him that he shall. Margie, this is Mr. Starpen. My daughter, Margaretta, Mr. Starpen."

Mrs. Bolsover, stout and good-natured, graciously put three more creases in her chin in acknowledgment of the introduction. Miss Margaretta inclined her red head and showed the remarkably good teeth in her rather wide mouth. The guest bowed until his expansive shirt bosom popped.

"I can assure you that I shall appreciate the privilege," he said. "Music has always been my great passion and particularly vocal music. I have been looking forward to this opportunity most eagerly."



"ASK YOUR DAUGHTER TO FAVOR ME AGAIN."

"Well, her father and I and our friends certainly do enjoy Margaretta's music," said Mrs. Bolsover, complacently. "We may not be very good judges, perhaps."

"I guess we've heard a few of the operatic stars in our time, all the same," said Bolsover. "Margie, sing something for us, like a good girl."

"Oh, pa!" remonstrated Margaretta. "I can't sing this evening. I'm so hoarse I can hardly speak. I know that I couldn't sing a note."

"Nonsense," said Bolsover.

"Do try, darling," begged her mother.

"I'm sure that Miss Bolsover won't be so cruel as to disappoint me," said Starpen. "I would be inconsolable. Please!"

"Oh, well, I'll try, then," said the young woman.

She seated herself at the piano and began to turn some pages of music. Starpen composed himself in an attitude of breathless expectancy, which Bolsover disturbed by informing him in an undertone that he had paid out over $3,000 up to date for his daughter's musical education. "I don't begrudge it, either," he said. "You'll see"

"I'm quite sure that you will never have any reason to," said Starpen. "I think when our children have a talent it's our duty to cultivate it. I'd give any amount you could mention if my daughters had any voice. But they haven't. It's one of the sorrows of my life."

"I don't see anything here," said Margaretta, wheeling around on her stool. "Is there any song that you would like, Mr. Starpen?"

"Why—er—er—anything, Miss Bolsover," said Starpen. "I'm sure that anything will be lovely. Just whatever you choose."

"But I'd like you to suggest something," persisted the young woman. "Tell me what you want me to sing."

"She knows 'em all," said Bolsover, proudly.

Starpen asked for "Oh, Promise Me."

Miss Bolsover began to sing it and he rolled his eyes to the ceiling in ecstasy. Occasionally he breathed a whispered "Ah-h-h!" of delight. Bolsover looked over at Mrs. Bolsover and nodded. Mrs. Bolsover nodded and smiled in return.

"Magnificent!" exclaimed Starpen, enthusiastically, when the song was finished. "My gracious, what a voice! Wonderful! I never heard anything like it! Mr. Bolsover, if your daughter could be heard in public the town would go crazy over her. I expected to hear something fine, but I never dreamed of a treat like that."

"You're just saying that," said Margaretta, blushing a little nevertheless as she rose from the piano.

"Oh, please!" entreated Starpen, rising to detain her. "Don't stop. If you only knew how I enjoy singing like that! I don't know when I ever listened to anything that gave me so much pleasure. I only wish that my wife were here. She's almost as fond of music as I am."

"Oh, I know that you don't mean it," said the girl.

"Mrs. Bolsover, Mr. Bolsover, won't you please ask your daughter to favor me again? Positively, I'm going to insist. I'm going to make a disturbance and refuse to leave the house when requested if I don't have some more. Could you sing—do you know 'The Holy City,' Miss Bolsover? Would you be so good?"

"Sing it," commanded Bolsover.

"Yes, do, dear," Mrs. Bolsover urged. "I'm glad you mentioned that one," she added, beaming on Starpen, "for I do think myself that Margaretta sings it beautifully. Everybody says so."

"I just had a hun—I had a sort of feeling that she must," said Starpen.

Margaretta sung "The Holy City" and Starpen's raptures were almost, but not quite, too great for speech. Later she sung, at his entreaty, "Dearie" and "Love Me and the World Is Mine." She sung others. In fact, she sung so many that by the time the evening drew to a close her plea of hoarseness was no mere excuse.

Starpen tore himself away with extreme reluctance. "Mr. Bolsover," he said to his host in the hall, "I want to repeat my thanks for one of the most delightful evenings that it has ever been my good fortune to pass. You are certainly to be congratulated on the marvelous talent that your daughter possesses. Talk about Mary Garden!"

"I'm glad you enjoyed it," said Bolsover. "I do think myself that she's a little out of the usual. Glad to see you at any time, and Margaretta will be glad to sing for you. I hope you'll come often."

"You'll have to buy a dog to keep me away," said Starpen. "Well, good-night, I'll see you at lunch to-morrow, then?"

"I know all that," said Mrs. Bolsover, a little later. "I think he's very nice, indeed, too. You can see he knows real singing when he hears it. But who is he? I never heard you speak of him before."

"Why, he's a sort of promoter, I believe," replied Bolsover. "He's got some sort of scheme for extracting turpentine from pine stumps and I believe I'll put a little money into it. Yes, I happened to mention that Margaretta sung and he was so interested that I invited him to come and hear her."—Chicago Daily News.

LEGEND OF ENCHANTED MESA.

Story of Great Disaster Which Wiped Out the Population.

The story of the enchanted mesa was only a tradition when, in 1541, the Spaniards first visited the pueblo of Acoma, in what is now Valencia County, New Mexico. Powerful tribes inhabited the region. These tribes or nations were constantly at war with each other, which accounts for the fortified character of the villages of the natives. The Queres, whose descendants now occupy Acoma, held this region and dwelt in small fortified towns, the capital of which was Acoma. It was not, however, the Acoma of to-day, but a city perched upon the top of the great rock now called Mesa Encantada. It was the magnificent city of the nation, and there dwelt the great men of the tribe, together with their families.

The rock then, as now, was unscalable, save at the one point where a narrow and precipitous trail led up the dizzy height. While not the most convenient dwelling place, for neither water nor vegetation was to be found upon the summit, it was safe from the attacks of foes. One man at the top of the trail could defend the city against the warriors of the entire West. One day, while a large number of the inhabitants were at work in the fields on the plain below, or attending to the affairs of the tribe in the various neighboring villages, something within the rock or in the earth beneath it, awoke to life and motion. There was a heaving, a squirming, and, with a mighty noise, it parted in twain and a portion fell in fragments to the plain below.

Such persons as were carried down in the debris were crushed to death. A worse fate remained for those left prisoners on top of the mesa, for that which fell carried away the narrow trail, the only means of ascent and descent. The stranded ones perished from thirst and starvation. The present Acoma family are the descendants of disaster. Ethnologists who visited the top of the rock some years ago found unmistakable evidences that it had once been the site of habitation. The story of the disaster had, previous to that time, been discredited and considered but an idle Indian legend. The discovery of the ancient ruins, however, seemed confirmatory of the tale, and it has since been credited.

Jefferson's Interest in Vaccination.

"I have heard my pa tell," said the oldest inhabitant, "that the first case of vaccination for the prevention of smallpox which occurred in the District of Columbia was in the year 1801, and the subject was a member of Thomas Jefferson's household. Mr. Jefferson was deeply interested in the theory of vaccination, and had so much confidence in it that he was willing to have it tried on one of his household. Aug. 6, 1801, was the date, and there was a great deal of talk about it at the time."—Washington Star.

Smiles of The Day

Ready Answer.

The man who is always asking foolish questions met a small boy coming down the road with a huge pickle wrapped up in brown paper.

"What is that you have, my little man?"

"Pickle. Didn't think it was a pumpkin, did you?"

"H'm! Where are you going?"

"Fishing."

"Fishing with a pickle?"

"Sure. I am going to catch pickerel. Anything else you want to know, mister?"

The Kind to Serve.

Experimenter (dogmatically) — You have to handle these children with gloves.

Tired Teacher (flippantly) — Kid gloves?—Baltimore American.

Not Like a Woman.

De Tough—I want to return this dog to the gent what owns him. I seen his ad. in the paper.

The Lady—How did you guess it was a "gent" that put the ad. in?

De Tough—'Cause it said, "No questions asked."

The Great Essential.

"Dumley's just back from a trip after trout, and he says it was the most dismal failure he ever experienced."

"What else would you expect of him? He couldn't make a fishing trip a success because he has absolutely no imagination."—Philadelphia Press.

The Modern Nomad.

"Did you ask that man why he paid rent instead of owning his own home?" asked one real estate agent.

"Yes," answered the other. "He said he didn't. He kept moving."—Washington Star.

That Inarticulate Cry.

"Railway employes are cautioned not to give any information to the curious public, are they not?"

"They must be. Even the brakeman seems inclined to make you guess at the names of the stations."—Washington Star.

A Foreign View.

Mrs. Gunson—Count, do you consider American girls good enough to marry foreign noblemen?

The Count—Ah, madam, ze beggar cannot be ze chooser.—Sunday Magazine.

Prosperity.

There's one great trouble about this unparalleled prosperity."

"What's that?"

"Keeps everybody broke living up to it."—Washington Herald.

The Best of It.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what is the difference between genius and insanity?

Pa—The lunatic, my son, is at least sure of his board and clothes.

A Fraction.

Billy—Look here, sister, I weigh eighty pounds!

Sister—No, you don't; it says just forty!

Billy—Yes, but I've got only one foot on the scale!

It Was All Right.

Passenger—Say, conductor, that man on the back platform just fell off.

Street Car Conductor—That's all right. He's paid his fare.—Detroit Times.

Not So Particular.

First Leap Year Girl—I'd propose if I could find a man I thought I could not live without.

Second Leap Year Girl—Huh! I'd be satisfied with a man I thought I could live with.

Behind the Curtain.

New Page (to the housemaid of a poet)—Do tell me why he is always standing before the mirror.

Housemaid—Hush! He is thinking how he will look when they raise a statue to him.—Fliegende Blaetter.

The Lack.

Knicker—There are plenty of books telling how to save life while waiting for the doctor.

Bocker—Yes. What we need is one telling the young doctor how to save life while waiting for the patient.—Harper's Bazaar.

Up-to-Date Milliner.

Mrs. De Style—I want to get a hat, but it must be the very latest style.

Milliner—Come back in about an hour, ma'am. The fashion is just changing.

Narrow Escape.

Harker—This paper states that the much abused Merry Widow hat will eventually take the masculine style.

Sportwood—I don't doubt it. One of them came near taking my eye in the shopping district yesterday. Just dodged the hatpin in time.

Never Touched Him.

"John," said the wife of his bosom, "don't you think you ought to save the money you waste on cigars?"

"Not me," replied John. "If I did, you would get busy and blow it in some other way."

Her Way.

"I wouldn't cry like that if I were you," said a lady to little Alice.

"Well," said Alice, between her sobs, "you can cry any way you like, but this is my way."—The United Presbyterian.

A Scorcher.

"Do you remember Bluffwood, the chap who boasted that it would not be long before he would be scorching in a big machine? Well, he made good."

"Ah, indeed! Then I suppose he is racing around the country in a big French car?"

"Not quite, but he's a-scorching in a big machine every day. Got a job running a patent ironer in a steam laundry."

Ought to Be a Winner.

"Say," remarked the man with the absent hair, "I've got an idea for a publication that would prove a bonanza for some enterprising journalist."

"Well, come on with the explanation," said the other party to the dialogue.

"It's a daily paper without advertisements," said the bald gentleman.

"Why do you think such a paper would be a success?" queried the other.

"Because of the enormous circulation it would attain," replied the party of the prelude. "Why, every man with a bargain-hunting wife would subscribe for it."

No Smartness There.

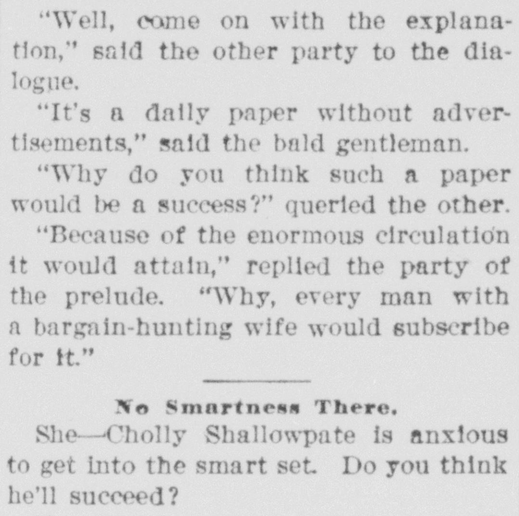
She—Cholly Shallowpate is anxious to get into the smart set. Do you think he'll succeed?

He—Oh, I think so. He looks sufficiently foolish to get in.



A Mean Suggestion
Since this is Leap year, isn't it Of course the proper thing for the young woman in the case To purchase her own ring?

Genial.

Impecunious Man—Can not you employ me as a clerk?

Merchant—No, there's not enough business to keep me busy quarter of the time.

Impecunious Man—Well, if you'd hire me we could kill time together!

A Hollow Ring.

Son—Pa, why does Mr. Ring say his head is as clear as a bell?

Pa—Because there is nothing in it but his tongue.—New York Tribune.

Matter of Reciprocity.

Hyker—Why did you give up smoking?

Pyker—In order to marry a rich widow.

Hyker—I fail to see the connection.

Pyker—She refused to give up her weeds unless I would give up mine.

Nothing in It.

"I don't think you should make such a fuss over that soup," grumbled the landlord. "I don't see anything in it."

"Neither do I," snapped the comedian boarder, as he adjusted his glasses and peered down into the thin mixture; "that's why I am kicking."

The Difference.

Kidder—A man enjoys himself at the theater when he has had a good laugh.

Katherine—And a woman when she has had a good cry.

The Old, Old Story.

Eva—Did you ever see those delightful old prints that represent the colonial belles winding the yarn around their beaux's hands?

Jack—Yes, and it always reminds me very forcibly of one thing.

Eva—And what is that?

Jack—Why, even in those days the girls knew how to string the men.

Sudden, Too.

Clancy—Did ye hear that Cassidy's landlord is dead?

Rooney—No; what did he die of?

Clancy—He asked Cassidy for his rent.

He Remembered.

Wife—I have about made up my mind, John, that when I married you I married a fool.

Husband—That reminds me of a remark you made just before we were married. You remember that you said it would be hard to find two people more alike than you and I.

Horse and Dog.

The dog is no doubt the most intelligent of our domestic animals, and I yield to none in my affection for him. I can almost eat and sleep with a fine dog winter and summer. But I try not to deceive myself about his intelligence. It seems to me that if the dog had the least spark of wit akin to our own—that is, power of reason—his long association with man would have fanned it into a flame, however small.

But after all these thousands of years of human companionship and love he has less wit in some respects than his wild brothers, the fox and the wolf. Having been spared the struggle to live that falls to their lot, his cunning and sagacity have deteriorated. The same is true of the horse, which has less intelligence than the wild stallion of the plains and for the same reason.

These animals do not grow wiser as they grow less wild. They do not civilize or develop. We train them into certain ways that make them serviceable to us; we humanize them without adding to their mental capacity. In other words, we cannot cross our intelligence upon theirs and make it fruitful in them. The germ will not take.—John Burroughs in Outing Magazine.

Too Slow to Be a Soldier.

In a room on the top floor of a large factory a boy was amusing himself by going through the bayonet exercise with a long-handled brush in lieu of a rifle. His boss, coming quickly upon him, gave him a box on the ear for wasting his time. The sudden blow caused the lad to lose his balance and fall down the hoist shaft, but fortunately he kept his hold on the brush, the handle of which, getting across the shaft, broke his fall and enabled him to grasp the chain, down which he slid in safety. The boss was horrified at the effect of his action and rushed breathless and gasping with fear down the eight flights of stairs to the basement, expecting to find a mangled body for which he would have to account. He was, however, just in time to see the lad drop on his feet unharmed, so, recovering his self-possession and his breath, he exclaimed:

"Want to be a soldier, eh? Well, you're too slow for that. Why, man, I can walk down all these stairs quicker than you can fall down the hoist shaft."—London Answers.

Toward the Pole.

Ice eight feet thick on the ocean and snow falling even in summer—such is the weather experienced in the polar regions. When the air is dry and still it is remarkable how low a temperature can be borne with ease. One explorer tells us that with the thermometer at 9 degrees it was too warm for skating. The summer weather in this region is, moreover, in some respects pleasant and healthful. Within the arctic zone there are wonderfully colored sunrises and sunsets to be seen. They are both brilliant and impressive. But the nights—the nights are monotonous and repelling. A rigid world buried in everlasting snow, silent save for the cracking of the ice or the wail of the wind. Travelers in these regions experience many discomforts. The keen air causes their skin to burn and blister, while their lips swell and crack. Thirst, again, has been much complained of, arising from the action of the low temperature on the warm body.

Pomp of English Mayors.

Chichester arms its chief magistrate with a gold mounted malacca cane of office, while the Mayor of Guildford carries the stick presented to the borough by Queen Elizabeth. At York both the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress are equipped with the silver mounted oak staves which have marked their authority for centuries. Among the official retainers of the Mayor of Ripon is the municipal horn blower, who every night at 9 o'clock winds three blasts upon this aged musical instrument before the Mayor's residence and again at the marked cross.—London Standard.

Hats Off in Parliament.

The old custom, honored by the usage of centuries, whereby members of the British Parliament were given to wearing their hats in the chamber during the legislative sessions, is apparently doomed to speedy extinction. In the House of Lords the practice of keeping the head covered is still rigidly adhered to, but in the Commons it is decidedly waning, much to the disgust of many of its conservative men, who think it a miserable breach of decorum for any member not to wear his hat during his attendance on the sittings.

Hardened.

"Listen to this, Maria," said Mr. Stubb as he unfolded his scientific paper. "This article states that in some of the old Roman prisons that have been unearthed they found the petrified remains of the prisoners."

"Gracious, John!" replied Mrs. Stubb, with a smile. "I suppose you would call them hardened criminals."

Fishes with Four Eyes.

Fishes have been discovered in Guatemala with two pairs of eyes. One pair does duty above water and the other below, the fish thus being able to see equally well in the elements.

Retrenching.

"I tell you, they are retrenching."

"But they still have their auto."

"Which they run well within the speed limit. Bah."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Money makes the mare go—if a man has enough of it to buy an automobile.

HIS KIND DEED.

"I saw a sight that touched me this morning," said the cashier. "It was a sight that restored my waning faith in humanity. It showed me that though a young man may be foolish, very conceited, very pig-headed, very frivolous and various other things, he is not necessarily devoid of humane instincts or generosity. I was glad to see that sight. It warmed the cockles of my heart."

The bill clerk wiped his pen on the half potato which he kept on his desk and then finished the cleaning process on the lining of his office coat. He was apparently oblivious to the cashier's remarks.

"Charity is a sweet and holy thing, Johnny," said the cashier.

The bill clerk grunted.

"Modesty is a fine thing, too," continued the cashier. "Some young fellows I have known would have bragged about it the first thing. If they had relieved the necessities of the poor, ragged, homeless old man they wouldn't have been satisfied till all their friends, acquaintances and business connections knew about it. Even if they said nothing until questioned they would have worn such an expression of happy virtue that anybody would have known they had done something out of the common. You look even more grouchy than you usually do on Monday mornings. Nobody would imagine that you had just done a kind action to look at you."

"Oh, cut it out!" said the bill clerk.

"Not until I have laid my humble tribute of admiration at your feet," said the cashier. "I have to tell you that I honor you. You are the good young Samaritan who did not pass by on the other side, though there was a crossing quite available. You needn't blush, my boy. I was right behind you and saw the charitable act."

The bill clerk looked up, but the expression on the cashier's face was entirely serious.

"Well," said the bill clerk, "he looked as if he needed it, poor old guy!"

"Indeed he did," said the cashier. "He was a most pitiable object. At the same time I think nine young men out of ten never would have noticed him."

"Oh, I don't know," said the bill clerk, in a deprecating tone.

"Unless they happened to know that there was a young woman of prepossessing appearance walking close behind," said the cashier. "Of course you didn't know it when your hand went so readily down into your jeans, but there was a good-looking girl close at your elbow, just the same. I think she was impressed. I'll bet she said to herself, 'My! What a noble young man!' Aren't you glad to know that, Johnny?"

"Didn't I tell you to cut it out?"

"You are not rich," said the cashier. "I happen to know what your salary is and I can form a slight guess at your expenditures. I know that at this time of the week you couldn't be expected to have very much money about you. You borrowed 50 cents from me last night, if my memory serves me. Yet at the sight of misery your heart expands and your fist goes down into your pocket as readily—far more readily than if you were a millionaire. Fine! It isn't the amount of the donation that counts, it's the spirit; at the same time that nickel was as much to you as a $1,000 check would be to some people. It must have been at least 10 per cent of all the money you had in the world at the time."

"Well, let it go," said the bill clerk.

"I'm not finding any fault with you for squandering my half-dollar in that way,' said the cashier. "I do not insist that you should be just before you are generous. I wouldn't have cared if you had made it a dime. But what made your jaw fall so, Johnny? It seemed to me that I saw all the bitterness of regret written on your face. It seems to me that it is still there."

"If you want to know," said the bill clerk, "I had just 30 cents and I gave the old stiff the quarter instead of the nickel. I didn't know it till I saw it in his hand and then I couldn't very well knock him down and take it away from him."

"I thought it was something of that kind," said the cashier.—Chicago Daily News.

Where the Goat Comes First.

Switzerland is the only country in the world where the goat is placed ahead of all other animals and even of human beings. If a body plagues a goat he can be fined and sent to jail. If a person meets a goat on a path and drives him aside he can be arrested.

If a goat enters the yard of a person not his owner and is hit with a club or stone, the person guilty of the offense must pay 30 cents. If a railroad train sees a goat on the track, the train must halt until the animal can be coaxed to remove himself. There's many a boy in America who wishes he were a goat in Switzerland.—Kansas City Journal.

Satisfied.

Hotel Chef—Did you hear the report about our last lot of butter, sir?

Hotel Manager—No; but I don't care how much they spread it.—Yonkers Statesman.

Love's cemetery—Grounds for divorce.

Woman's Wit.

An emperor of Germany besieged a city which belonged to one of his rebellious noblemen. After the siege had lasted for a long time the emperor determined to take it by storm and to destroy all it contained by fire and sword. He did not, however, wish to injure the defenseless women; therefore, he sent a proclamation into the town, saying that all the women might leave the place unhurt and carry with them whatever they held most precious. The nobleman's wife instantly decided to take her husband, and the other women followed her example. They soon issued from the city gate in a long procession, each one with her husband on her shoulders. The emperor was so much struck with the noble conduct of the women that he spared all; even the city itself was left untouched.

ONE WOMAN'S ENDURANCE.

Southern Woman Suffers Tortures Without Complaint.

Racked and torn with terrific pains, nightly annoyed by kidney irregularities, Mrs. A. S. Payne, of 801 Third Ave. So., Columbus, Miss., suffered for years. She says: "The pains in my back, sides and loins were so terrible that I often smothered a scream. Every move meant agony. My rest was broken by a troublesome weakness and the secretions seemed to burn like acid. I was in an awful condition and doctors did not seem to help. Doan's Kidney Pills benefited me from the first and soon made me a strong and healthy woman."

Shattering an Illusion.

The office was seeking the man.

"Not that I care anything about him," explained the office, "but merely as a concession to the popular idea that I ought to seek him."

Having thus satisfied the ethical requirements of the case, the office, wearying of the perfunctory search, reached out and grabbed a man who was seeking the office.—Chicago Tribune.

BLACK ITCHING SPOTS ON FACE.

Physician Called It Eczema in Worst Form—Patient Despaired of Cure —Cuticura Remedies Cured Her.

"About four years ago I was afflicted with black splotches all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a severe itching irritation, and which caused me a great deal of suffering, to such an extent that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians of ——. After a thorough examination of the dreaded complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in the worst form. Their treatment did me no good. Finally I became despondent and decided to discontinue their services. My husband purchased a single set of the Cuticura Remedies, which entirely stopped the breaking out. I continued the use of the Cuticura Remedies for six months, and after that every splotch was entirely gone. I have not felt a symptom of the eczema since, which was three years ago. Mrs. Lizzie E. Sledge, 540 Jones Ave., Selma, Ala., Oct. 28, 1906."

A Trying Prescription.

There was little doubt in the doctor's mind that Mr. Lambkin's recovery from an attack of nervous exhaustion would be more rapid if Mrs. Lambkin were a less animated and constant talker.

Mrs. Lambkin had never felt that her husband's trouble was serious. Her own health was in a far more precarious condition than his, she felt sure.

"We didn't need to come to the country on his account any more than on mine," she told the doctor on his third visit. "As I say to Mr. Lambkin, day after day, if he'd rise above his feelings as I do, and take an interest in everything, and ask questions and observe, and draw people out, he'd forget himself. Now I know perfectly well that I have a high temperature this morning, and I should like you to look at my tongue."

She thrust out her long and lively tongue for the doctor's inspection, and waited for his answer.

"I see, madam," he said at last, gravely, "that it is sadly in need of exactly what I am prescribing for your husband—perfect rest and quiet for at least six hours a day for the next three months."

People Tell Each Other About Good Things.

Twelve years ago few people in the world knew of such a preparation as a Powder for the Feet. To-day after the genuine merit of Allen's Foot-Ease has been told year after year by one gratified person to another, there are millions who would as soon go without a dentifrice as without Allen's Foot-Ease. It is a cleanly, wholesome, healing, antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, which has given rest and comfort to tired and aching feet in all parts of the world. It cures while you walk. Over 30,000 testimonials of cures of smarting, swollen, perspiring feet. It prevents friction and wear of the stockings and will save in your stocking bill ten times its cost each year. Imitations pay the dealer a larger profit, otherwise, you would never be offered a substitute when you ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, the original powder for the feet. Imitations are not advertised because they are not permanent. For every genuine article there are many imitations. The imitator has no reputation to sustain—the advertiser has. It stands to reason that the advertised article is the best, otherwise the public would not buy it and the advertising could not be continued. When you ask for an article advertised in this paper, see that you get it. Refuse imitations.

She Said So, Anyway.

The young man who was endeavoring to win the favor of Bobby's pretty sister met the boy on the street one morning, and greeted him with much cordiality.

"Er—do you think your sister was pleased to know I had called the other day?" he was at last forced to ask, bluntly, after several efforts to guide Bobby's conversation in that direction.

"Sure!" said Bobby, with gratifying promptness. "I know she was. I heard her say so.

"When she came home mother said, 'Mr. Brown called while you were out,' and she said, 'He did? Well, I'm glad of that!'"

Instrumental Music.

That a word may convey vastly different meanings when differently used is amusingly illustrated by a story from the Brooklyn Life.

"Have ye heard me daughter Mona sing lately?" asked Mr. Dugan.

"Both lately and early," said Mr. Hogan. "'Tis the fine insthrumental music she do make."

"Ye ignoramus! Sure, singing ain't insthrumental music!" indignantly replied Mr. Dugan.

"Keegan told me it was insthrumental in causing him to move two blocks away from yer house."

Surer Grasp.

"One objection to your poem," said the editor, glancing through the manuscript, "is that Whittier once wrote a poem embodying substantially the same ideas."

"Do you mean to say, sir," thundered the six-foot caller, "that I——"

"But you have improved on them, my dear sir," hastily interposed the editor; "you have improved on them immensely."

THINGS YOU MAY NOT KNOW

The rate of production of gold is approximately a million dollars a day.

Since the earthquake and fire at San Francisco 9,800 buildings have been erected and 4,000 others remodeled. The disaster destroyed 28,000 buildings.

It takes four years to train a lion for exhibition work, and only one animal in four is fit for training. A well-trained lion is worth five times the price of one untrained.

London's greatest rush hours are from 8 to 9 in the morning and at about 6:30 in the evening. Between 8 and 9 164,000 persons enter the city, between 6 and 7 175,000 leave.

As a result of a drought it is now generally acknowledged in sugar circles that the Cuban sugar production this season will not exceed 900,000 tons, a deficit of about 500,000 tons from the previous crop.

Within two years since the great earthquake which undid San Francisco, that heroic city has put $100,000,000 into building operations, of which, according to trustworthy statement, all but $4,000,000 came from local sources.

Since the United States government began to patronize expositions, down to the Jamestown fair, Congress has appropriated a total of $28,752,251 for world's fairs, of which only $485,000 has been spent west of the Rocky mountains, at the Lewis and Clark exposition.

The new electric Fastnet light, off Cape Clear, Ireland, is of 750,000 candle-power. The cost was $420,000. The focal plane of the flash is 150 feet above high water, and theoretically it is visible sixteen miles. The foundations of the lighthouse are twenty feet thick.

In Brazil the federal government owns and operates 1,287 miles of railroad lines. It also owns four lines of 734 miles all told, and leases them to private companies. State governments own 110 miles. Under private ownership and operation are something like 8,000 miles.

According to the official figures of the Russian customs, the importation of motor cars into that country is increasing very rapidly. The following totals are given: In 1902, 35 cars, in 1903, 60; in 1904, 180; in 1905, 111, and in 1906, 242. For the first six months of 1907 the total was 257.

An Egyptian paper says that the native families pay an average tax of $4.65 an acre, or 28.5 per cent of the crop. Foreigners and land companies hold 65,000 acres. Through their insolvency and liquidation, and the redistribution of the estates formed since 1902, it is probable that large amounts of gold may be unhoarded.

Census statistics show that as a people we are increasing in violence. From 1902 to 1906 there was an increase in the percentage of persons who came to their end by violence. In 1902 only 6.1 per cent were thus taken off out of every hundred. In 1906 it was 7.5 per cent, while the average for 1901 to 1905 was 6.6 per cent.

Since 1860 the Republican party has carried every presidential election except two, the two exceptions being in 1884 and 1892, when Cleveland was elected. The largest number of electoral votes ever polled for a presidential candidate was in 1904, when Roosevelt received 336 votes. Since 1872 New York has been carried three times by the Democratic party and six times by the Republican party.

By the patent act, which recently passed the British Parliament and has already gone into effect, it becomes necessary for foreign holders of patents under British authority to erect and operate works in Great Britain for the production of articles thus patented. Foreign patentees under the old act were protected against competition by their patent rights, but did not have to produce in the country which protected their patents.

No process has yet been discovered by which the highly arsenical ore found in Cobalt properties can be smelted. This problem has been the subject of research by many chemists, particularly those of Germany, and there is a fortune awaiting the discoverer. Many of the smaller properties in the Canadian silver district have large quantities of ore which is practically useless at the moment on account of the percentage of arsenic which it contains.—Wall Street Journal.

There is a trust corporation, of immemorial antiquity, at Cairo, known as the Wakfs. It holds landed property which has been conveyed to it for pious uses. But this was frequently a device to secure to the family of the donor or testator a large share of the annual proceeds. Its net income last year, according to the Egyptian Standard, was $2,161,500; and it carried forward a balance of $581,070, to be expended in new enterprises, presumably of a religious or educational character.

There is but one county without railroad connection in the State of Colorado. Heretofore it has been considered quite a distinction out there to be outside the railroad belt, and Grand, Rio Blanco, Baca and Routt counties were in the list of exclusives; but one after the other has been annexed, so to speak, to the outside world, Routt being the latest, until now little Baca county, away down in the southeast corner of the State, is left to enjoy the honor all by itself. In 1868 there wasn't a foot of railroad track in the then territory.

Two Uncomfortable Beds.

An old mountain preacher used to tell of a lawyer a friend of his, who lived at the county seat of a mountain county. Back in the hills somewhere lived one of his clients, whom he had occasionally entertained with the ready hospitality of Kentucky. When he left, the client always invited the lawyer to come to see him when in his neighborhood.

Business called the lawyer back into the hills one winter day, and late in the afternoon he found himself in the vicinity of his client. He decided to accept the often-repeated invitation.

After inquiry, he found the shack—one of the poorest he had ever seen. As there was no sign of barn or shed, he blanketed his horse and hitched him in the lee of the house.

His warm welcome was genuine, but supper was in accord with the surroundings, and at bedtime he was conducted to the loft, which he found bare of beds, but well filled wtih partly dried cornstalks. He was bidden to make his bed on the fodder.

His overcoat furnished inadequate protection. After a short nap, he wakened, stiff with cold. He remembered the big fireplace with the backlog, and decided to go downstairs and start the fire.

The coals brightened as he stirred them and added kindling. The sparks and smoke began their ascent, when the guest noticed a strange commotion at the back of the fireplace. This stopped when the oldest son of the family, covered with soot and ashes, scrambled from the backlog, where he had gone to sleep for the night.

"I will follow you to the end of the earth!" hissed the villain in her shell-like ear. But the clever girl fooled him—she didn't go there.—Boston Transcript.
